Improving Arrangements for Surrogacy Bill

Recommendation

The Health Committee is considering the Improving Arrangements for Surrogacy Bill and recommends that the House take note of this third interim report on the bill.

Background to our interim report

We are currently considering the Improving Arrangements for Surrogacy Bill. As introduced, the bill seeks to simplify surrogacy arrangements and provide a mechanism for enforcing them, and ensure that information recorded on birth certificates is complete.

The bill was referred to the Health Committee of the 53rd Parliament on 18 May 2022. The bill was initially a Member's bill in the name of Tāmati Coffey, MP. On 30 May 2023, the Government announced that it had agreed to adopt the bill as a Government bill.

On 29 April 2022, the Law Commission published a report, Te Kōpū Whāngai: He Arotake, Review of Surrogacy. The previous Health Committee obtained permission from the Business Committee to consider out-of-scope amendments to the bill, so that it could incorporate recommendations from the Law Commission's report.

The committee presented two interim reports on the bill, on 27 October 2022 and 24 August 2023, to update the House on its consideration.¹ In the second interim report, the committee informed the House that it had asked the Parliamentary Counsel Office to redraft the bill to incorporate the Law Commission's recommendations. The committee recommended that the Health Committee of the 54th Parliament consider seeking further public input on the redrafted bill if the bill was reinstated. The committee released the advice it had received to date to allow interested individuals and organisations time to consider the information in the advice.

The bill was subsequently reinstated with us in the 54th Parliament.

Update on our consideration of the bill and purpose of this third interim report

We have received a redrafted version of the bill from the Parliamentary Counsel Office, which incorporates the recommendations from the Law Commission's report. We have considered the previous committee's recommendation, and have agreed that seeking public input on the proposed changes would help our consideration. The proposed changes to the bill are extensive, and the new version of the bill is substantially different from the bill as introduced. This reflects many of the Law Commission's recommendations. The committee put the surrogate-born child at the centre of our discussions.

The purpose of this interim report is to release the redrafted version of the bill for public input.

¹ Copies of the first interim report and second interim report are available on the Parliament website.

We have appended the following documents to our report:

- Appendix B—an explanatory note that explains each of the proposed new clauses in the redrafted bill and proposes questions for submitters.
- Appendix C—the redrafted bill showing proposed amendments.

Specific matters that we are seeking feedback on

We are interested in any feedback that submitters wish to provide on the redrafted bill. We would also like to draw submitters' attention to 15 questions that we would like to receive feedback on. Submitters might like to consider one or more of these questions in their submissions. As noted above, these questions are also included in the explanatory note that is attached to this report. Submitters can find more context for these questions in the explanatory note and the redrafted bill. The questions are as follows:

Amendments to the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004

1. Do you agree with the requirement in new section 23E—or have any other views about the nature or level of a provider's assistance with a surrogacy arrangement that should trigger the requirement for the arrangement to be approved by the ethics committee?
2. How may applications made by a surrogate and intended parents under new section 23G operate in an easy and cost-effective way?
3. Should the cancellation of an approval of a surrogacy arrangement or an assisted reproductive procedure proposed to be undertaken in connection with a surrogacy arrangement only be able to be made before a particular step or stage of the surrogacy process? If so, what should that step or stage be?
4. Should there be provision for a review panel to review the decisions of the ethics committee in relation to applications for approval of surrogacy arrangements and assisted reproductive procedures, or is the ability of the ethics committee to reconsider applications sufficient?
5. Do you have any views on what information should be collected about surrogates and donors, including whether surrogates' and donors' hapū and iwi should be collected separately from their ethnicity and cultural affiliations?

Amendments to the Status of Children Act 1969

6. Should there be an upper time limit for the initiation or completion of a transfer of parentage by operation of law or by a parentage order? If so, what should the time limit be? Should an older surrogate-born child be able to apply for a parentage order, or have an exclusive right to apply for a parentage order?
7. After a surrogate-born person's parentage has transferred to the intended parents, in what circumstances should a marriage or civil union be prohibited between the surrogate-born person and the surrogate or a member of the surrogate's family? Is the approach in new section 36 appropriate, or could a less restrictive approach be appropriate? For example, should a surrogate-born person who has no genetic connection to their surrogate and whose parentage has been transferred be able to enter into a civil union or marriage with a person who is a child of the surrogate?
8. Should a transfer of parentage have any other legal effects beyond those outlined in new sections 35–37?

9. Do you agree that the transfer of parentage by operation of law should take effect when the intended parents receive the surrogate's signed declaration? Or should the transfer of parentage by operation of law take effect on the date that the surrogate signs the declaration, or at some other time?
10. Should a transfer of parentage by operation of law only be available in respect of a surrogate-born child who is born in New Zealand?
11. Are declarations of parentage needed and, if so, in what circumstances might an application for a declaration of parentage be made? Or should the provisions of subpart 4 of new Part 3 be removed from the bill?
12. Are there other circumstances beyond those outlined in new section 66 in which an overseas parentage determination should be recognised in New Zealand?
13. Should identity information about a surrogate-born child be collected as outlined in new section 67?

Amendments to the Births, Deaths, Marriages, and Relationships Registration Act 2021

14. Should there be a mechanism to alert surrogate-born people to the existence of their restricted information? If so, is the notification mechanism proposed in new section 92A appropriate? Or is there an alternative mechanism that would better balance the right to identity information and the right to privacy of personal information?

Amendments to the Adoption Act 1955

15. Do you agree with new section 4A proposed to be inserted in the Adoption Act 1955? Or do you have any other views on when a surrogate-born child should be able to be adopted?

We look forward to receiving submissions on the updated version of the bill.

Committee procedure

The Improving Arrangements for Surrogacy Bill was referred to the Health Committee of the 53rd Parliament on 18 May 2022. The committee called for submissions on the bill with a closing date of 20 July 2022. It received submissions from 34 interested groups and individuals, and heard oral evidence from 12 submitters at hearings in Wellington and by videoconference. That committee published two interim reports on the bill, on 27 October 2022 and 24 August 2023.

The bill was reinstated in the 54th Parliament. We received advice on the bill from the Ministry of Justice, the Department of Internal Affairs, the Inland Revenue Department, and the Ministry of Health. The Parliamentary Counsel Office has assisted with legal drafting.

DRAFT FOR CONSULTATION

Improving Arrangements for Surrogacy Bill

Government Bill

Explanatory note and queries for submitters

Clause by clause analysis

Clause 1 is the Title clause.

Clause 2 is the commencement clause. It provides that the Bill comes into force 12 months after Royal assent, except that—

- section 10I, to the extent that it relates to new sections 23L to 23S of the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004 (which establish the review panel and provide for the review of decisions made by the ethics committee in relation to the approval of surrogacy arrangements), comes into force 18 months after Royal assent; and
- Part 5A (amendments to the Income Tax Act 2007) comes into force on 1 April [insert].

The delay in the commencement of the Bill is to enable various administrative processes to be put in place. It also allows amendments to be made to the Family Court Rules 2002 (in relation to new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969) and for those amendments to be brought into force concurrently.

Part 1

Amendments to Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004

Clause 10A provides that Part 1 amends the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004 (the principal Act).

Clause 10B amends section 3 of the principal Act to provide that the principal Act has the following additional purposes:

- to provide for the approval of surrogacy arrangements; and
- to establish an information-keeping regime in relation to surrogacy arrangements.

Clause 10C amends section 4 of the principal Act to—

- extend the principle in section 4(a) so that the health and well-being of children born as a result of a surrogacy arrangement should be an important consideration in all decisions about that arrangement; and
- include the principle that persons born as a result of a surrogacy arrangement should have the opportunity to learn about their genetic and gestational origins and whakapapa, and that they should be able to access this information in the future.

Clause 10D amends section 5 of the principal Act to—

- replace the definition of surrogacy arrangement with a more expansive definition that includes the requirement that the arrangement be entered into before the conception of the surrogate-born child;
- replace the definition of valuable consideration with a definition that also expressly captures payments and rewards;
- insert definitions for intended parents (which is defined with reference to 1 or 2 people), review panel, surrogate, and surrogate-born child.

Clause 10E replaces section 12 of the principal Act. New section 12—

- carries over the existing offence of obtaining a gamete from an individual who is under 16 years of age but establishes a defence that the defendant must prove that they obtained the gamete for the purpose of preserving it and that an appropriate consent was given to the procedure; and
- carries over the existing offence of using a gamete that was obtained from an individual who is under 16 years of age but broadens the defence to allow the gamete to be used for a lawful purpose with the consent of the individual after the individual turns 16 years of age.

Clause 10F repeals section 14 of the principal Act. The prohibition on commercial surrogacy arrangements is now dealt with in new section 23C (inserted by clause 10I).

Clause 10G is a technical amendment to section 15 of the principal Act to update a cross-reference to section 14 (repealed by clause 10F) to a reference to new section 23C.

Clause 10H inserts, in subpart 2 of Part 2 of the principal Act, new section 15A to define the terms assisted reproductive procedure and activity. Subpart 2 of Part 2 of the principal Act provides that it is an offence to perform an assisted reproductive procedure without obtaining the prior approval of the ethics committee and requires that an approved activity be undertaken in accordance with any applicable conditions and regulations. The terms assisted reproductive procedure and activity are defined to exclude procedures performed, and activities undertaken, in connection with a surrogacy arrangement so that surrogacy arrangements will not be regulated under this subpart. Surrogacy arrangements will instead be regulated under new subpart 2A of Part 2 (inserted by clause 10I).

Clause 10I inserts new subpart 2A into Part 2 of the principal Act, which relates to surrogacy arrangements. This new subpart comprises new sections 23A to 23S.

New section 23A is an interpretation provision and defines terms used in new subpart 2A of Part 2, including applicant and social worker.

New section 23B carries over existing section 14(1) (repealed by clause 10F) and provides that a surrogacy arrangement is not illegal, but is not enforceable by or against any person. However, new section 23B also provides that an obligation under a surrogacy arrangement to pay or reimburse reasonable surrogacy costs is enforceable.

New section 23C carries over existing section 14(3) and (4) (repealed by clause 10F), which provides that it is an offence to be involved in a commercial surrogacy arrangement. In addition to providing that valuable consideration given, for certain purposes, to a provider or legal adviser does not constitute involvement in a commercial surrogacy arrangement, new section 23C also permits payments to persons publishing certain material and to surrogates for reasonable surrogacy costs they have incurred.

New section 23D defines reasonable surrogacy costs. Reasonable surrogacy costs are the reasonable costs of a surrogate associated with becoming or trying to become pregnant, a pregnancy or birth, post-partum recovery, and entering into and giving effect to a surrogacy arrangement. A non-exhaustive list of a surrogate's reasonable surrogacy costs is given, which includes reasonable medical costs, travel and accommodation costs, and out-of-pocket expenses, as well as the cost of health insurance premiums and the amount of lost or diminished income.

New section 23E provides that a surrogacy arrangement that involves the assistance of a provider must be approved by the ethics committee. If a surrogacy arrangement involves the assistance of a provider performing an assisted reproductive procedure, the ethics committee's prior written approval of both the surrogacy arrangement and the assisted reproductive procedure must be obtained. If a surrogacy arrangement involves the assistance of a provider performing an established procedure, the ethics committee's prior written approval of only the surrogacy arrangement must be obtained. A provider who fails to obtain the necessary consents commits an offence and is liable on conviction to a fine of up to $50,000.

Query for submitters

1. Do you agree with the requirement in this section or have any other views about the nature or level of a provider's assistance with a surrogacy arrangement that should trigger the requirement for the arrangement to be approved by the ethics committee?

New section 23F provides that if a surrogacy arrangement does not involve the assistance of a provider performing an assisted reproductive procedure or an established procedure, the ethics committee's prior written approval may (but need not) be obtained in relation to surrogacy arrangement.

New section 23G sets out how an application for the approval of a surrogacy arrangement is to be made to the ethics committee. The application must be made in the form and manner approved by the ethics committee and contain detail of the surrogacy arrangement for which the approval is sought. If a provider is assisting with the surrogacy arrangement, the application must be made by the provider. In any other case, the application must be made jointly by the surrogate and intended parents or by a provider.

Query for submitters

2. How may applications made by a surrogate and intended parents operate in an easy and cost effective way?

New section 23H requires the ethics committee to consider a social worker's report before determining an application for the approval of a surrogacy arrangement. A provider or the ethics committee may request the chief executive of Oranga Tamariki—Ministry for Children to arrange the preparation of a social worker's report. The report must assess whether the intended parents under the proposed surrogacy arrangement would pose any risk of serious harm to a child born as a result of the arrangement and be prepared in accordance with any regulations made under section 76 of the principal Act and any relevant guidelines issued by the advisory committee.

New section 23I requires the ethics committee, before approving a surrogacy arrangement, to be satisfied that the surrogacy arrangement—

- meets all requirements set out in any guidance issued by the advisory committee relevant to the surrogacy arrangement; and
- is consistent with any relevant advice given by the advisory committee.

New section 23I also requires the ethics committee, before approving an assisted reproductive procedure to be undertaken in connection with a surrogacy arrangement, to be satisfied that the procedure—

- meets all requirements set out in any guidance issued by the advisory committee relevant to the procedure; and
- is consistent with any relevant advice given by the advisory committee.

New section 23J provides that an approval of a surrogacy arrangement, or any assisted reproductive procedure to be undertaken in connection with a surrogacy arrangement, may be given subject to any conditions the ethics committee considers appropriate. On its own initiative, or on the request of the applicant, the ethics committee may subsequently change the conditions on an approval by varying a condition, revoking a condition, or by imposing 1 or more new conditions.

New section 23K provides that the ethics committee may cancel an approval given, in whole or in part, if—

- it is satisfied that 1 or more conditions of the approval has been breached; or
- the surrogacy arrangement, or any assisted reproductive procedure to be undertaken in connection with a surrogacy arrangement, is inconsistent with the advisory committee's guidelines or advice, is inconsistent with the description in the application, or breaches, or has breached, the principal Act or any applicable regulations; or
- the ethics committee has subsequently become aware that an assisted reproductive procedure undertaken in connection with the surrogacy arrangement poses a serious risk to human health and safety.

Before cancelling an approval, the ethics committee must inform the applicant of the proposed cancellation, give the applicant a reasonable time to make written submission and be heard on the matter, and consider any submissions.

If the approval of an assisted reproductive procedure is cancelled, no further step may be taken in respect of that procedure.

Query for submitters

3. Should the cancellation of an approval of a surrogacy arrangement or an assisted reproductive procedure proposed to be undertaken in connection with a surrogacy arrangement only be able to be made before a particular step or stage of the surrogacy process? If so, what should that step or stage be?

New section 23L requires the Minister of Health (the Minister) to establish and maintain a review panel to review applications made under new section 23M. The Minister must have regard to certain matters when appointing panel members and appointment is by written notice stating the date on which the appointment takes effect, the term of the appointment, and any conditions of the appointment. One panel member must be appointed as the chairperson of the panel.

The Director-General of Health must provide the panel with administrative support to assist the panel in performing its functions.

Query for submitters

4. Should there be provision for a review panel to review the decisions of the ethics committee in relation to applications for approval of surrogacy arrangements and assisted reproductive procedures, or is the ability of the ethics committee to reconsider applications sufficient?

New section 23M provides that an applicant for approval of a surrogacy arrangement, or any assisted reproductive procedure to be undertaken in connection with a surrogacy arrangement, may apply to the review panel for a review of a decision made by the ethics committee to decline the application or to impose conditions on the approval. An application for review must be made in a form and manner approved by the panel and be lodged with the chairperson of the panel within 28 working days after the date on which the applicant is notified of the decision.

New section 23N provides that, on receiving an application for review, the chairperson must convene a meeting of the review panel to consider the application. The quorum for a meeting is 3 panel members, including the chairperson. A decision of the panel must be made by consensus, or otherwise by majority.

New section 23O affords to the chairperson of the review panel the power to obtain from the ethics committee information relating to the decision that is the subject of the review. The chairperson may also make inquiries of, and request explanations from, the ethics committee in relation to its decision and may also seek advice from the advisory committee.

New section 23P gives the review panel power to dismiss an application brought under new section 23M if it is satisfied that the application is trivial.

New section 23Q provides that the panel must look at the matter afresh and decide the application in accordance with any relevant guidelines or relevant advice issued or given by the advisory committee. The panel must confirm the ethic committee's decision, modify the decision, replace the decision with another decision, or refer the decision back to the ethics committee for reconsideration.

As soon as practicable after determining an application, the review panel must provide the applicant with a copy of its decision, which must include the reasons for its decision.

New section 23R requires the review panel to perform its functions and exercise its powers expeditiously.

New section 23S requires the review panel to give a copy of its decision to both the ethics committee and the advisory committee.

Clause 10J is a technical amendment that inserts, before the cross-heading above section 24 of the principal Act, a subpart heading: Subpart 2B—Moratoriums. This is to assist with the structure of the principal Act so that it is easier to navigate. Subpart 2B will consist of sections 24 to 26 of the principal Act.

Clause 10K is also a technical amendment to insert a new subpart heading to make the principal Act easier to navigate. Before the cross-heading above section 27, the following subpart heading is inserted: Subpart 2C—Ethics committee. Subpart 2C will consist of sections 27 to 31 and new section 31A of the principal Act.

Clause 10L amends section 27 of the principal Act to require the Minister to ensure that the membership of the ethics committee includes 2 or more persons with the ability to articulate the interests of children.

New section 27(3A) is also inserted to require that when designating the ethics committee, the Minister must have regard to the need for the committee to have available to it collectively from its members expertise in, knowledge of, or experience in mātauranga Māori and the ability to articulate Māori perspectives.

Clause 10M amends section 28 of the principal Act so that the ethics committee's functions in relation to surrogacy arrangements are expressly stated.

Clause 10N replaces the cross-heading above section 31 to more accurately refer to notices and annual reports (of the ethics committee).

Clause 10O repeals section 31(3), which requires the Ministry of Health's annual reports to include the names of the members of the ethics committee and the name of the chairperson. This provision is repealed because clause 10P inserts new section 31A, which requires the ethics committee to prepare annual reports.

Clause 10P inserts new section 31A into the principal Act, which requires the ethics committee to provide the Minister with annual reports that include specified information. This information includes the name of the chairperson of the committee, the names of the other members of the committee, the number and kind of applications for approval received by the committee in the year, and the outcomes of those applications.

The Minister must present a copy of the report to the House of Representatives and the ethics committee must then publish the report on the internet.

Clause 10Q amends section 34 of the principal Act to increase to 2 the number of members that must have the ability to articulate the interests of children.

Section 34 of the principal Act is also amended to require that, when appointing members of the advisory committee, the Minister must have regard to the need for the committee to have available to it collectively from its members expertise in, knowledge of, or experience in mātauranga Māori and the ability to articulate Māori perspectives. This provision is the same as new section 27(3A) (inserted by clause 10L) in relation to the designation of the ethics committee.

Lastly, section 34(5) of the principal Act is amended to specify that only 1 of the members that have an ability to articulate the interests of children must be a board member, representative, or employee of the Children and Young People's Commission.

Clause 10R amends section 35(1) of the principal Act to expressly recognise as functions of the advisory committee—

- issuing guidelines and giving advice to the ethics committee on matters relating to surrogacy arrangements; and
- giving advice to the review panel; and
- providing advice to the Minister on aspects of, or issues arising out of, surrogacy arrangements; and
- liaising with the ethics committee on matters relating to surrogacy arrangements.

Section 35(2) of the principal Act is also amended to require the advisory committee to monitor the outcomes of approved surrogacy arrangements.

Clause 10S replaces the cross-heading above section 42 to more accurately refer to notices and annual reports (of the advisory committee).

Clause 10T repeals section 42(3) and (4) of the principal Act, which requires the advisory committee to provide annual reports to the Minister. This provision is repealed because clause 10U inserts new section 42A, which deals specifically with the advisory committee's annual reports.

Clause 10U inserts new section 42A, which relates to the advisory committee's annual reports. This section is substantially the same as existing section 42(3) and (4), but no longer requires the advisory committee to include in its annual report details of decisions made by the ethics committee. This is because the ethics committee is required by new section 31A (inserted by clause 10P) to prepare its own reports. After the Minister presents a copy of the advisory committee's annual report to the House of Representatives, the advisory committee must publish the report on the Internet.

Clause 10V inserts new Part 3A into the principal Act, which provides for the collection of information about surrogates, donors, and surrogate-born children. This new Part comprises new sections 66A to 66H.

New Part 3A provides for the collection of information about surrogates, donors, and surrogate-born children.

New section 66A provides that new Part 3A applies to a provider who, on or after the commencement of this Part, assists with a surrogacy arrangement by performing an assisted reproductive procedure or an established procedure.

New section 66B requires a provider to obtain certain personal information about a surrogate and to subsequently accept any information that a surrogate offers to update or correct that information.

New section 66C requires a provider to obtain certain personal information about a donor who donated genetic material that resulted in a surrogate's pregnancy and to subsequently accept any information that a donor offers to update or correct that information.

Query for submitters

5. Do you have any views on what information should be collected about surrogates and donors, including whether surrogates' and donors' hapū and iwi should be collected separately from their ethnicity and cultural affiliations?

New section 66D provides that before obtaining any information from a surrogate or donor, the provide must ensure that the surrogate and donor are aware of certain matters, including that a surrogate-born child may obtain access to the information under the Births, Deaths, Marriages, and Relationships Registration Act 2021.

New section 66E requires providers to have in place an effective system for being notified, or being made aware of, the birth of a child as a result of a surrogacy arrangement.

New section 66F requires a provider to obtain certain information about a surrogate-born child, including the names of the intended parents.

New section 66G requires that, as soon as reasonably practicable after obtaining information about a surrogate-born child, a provider must advise the Registrar-General of the birth and give to the Registrar-General the information that the provider has obtained about the surrogate, the donors whose donation resulted in the birth of the child, and the surrogate-born child. The information must be given in a form and manner required by the Registrar-General. If a provider subsequently receives any additional information that corrects or updates any of the information given to the Registrar-General, that updated or corrected information must be promptly passed on to the Registrar-General.

New section 66H provides that a provider may destroy any information obtained about a surrogate and donor if the surrogate's pregnancy is terminated, the embryo is destroyed, or a donated cell is destroyed.

Clause 10W amends section 76 to provide for the making of regulations about social workers' reports referred to in new section 23H, including the steps and actions that a social worker must take when preparing a report, the information that must be considered in the course of preparing the report, and the information that a report must contain. Regulations about the steps and actions that a social worker must take when preparing a report must be made on the recommendation of the Minister responsible for the administration of the Oranga Tamariki Act 1989 after consultation with the Minister of Justice and being satisfied that the actions and steps are reasonably necessary to identify any risk that the intended parents may cause serious harm to a surrogate-born child.

Part 3

Amendments to Status of Children Act 1969

Clause 18 provides that Part 3 amends the Status of Children Act 1969 (the principal Act).

Clause 19 replaces section 2 of the principal Act, which is the interpretation provision. New section 2 now includes definitions for adoption order, Registrar-General, and surrogacy arrangement. The definition of surrogacy arrangement is the same as the definition for this term inserted into section 5 of the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004 by clause 10D(1).

Clause 19A inserts new section 2AA, which relates to transitional, savings, and related provisions set out in new Schedule 1 (inserted by clause 19J).

Clause 19B amends section 5 of the principal Act to insert new subsection (IAAA), which provides that the presumptions as to parenthood in section 5 do not apply in respect of surrogate-born children.

Clause 19C inserts new section 7AAA to provide that sections 7 to 10 of the principal Act (which relate to paternity) do not apply in respect of surrogate-born children.

Clause 19D is a technical amendment that repeals the definition of Registrar-General in section 9(4) of the principal Act. This definition is not required because Registrar-General is now defined in the interpretation provision (see clause 19, which amends section 2 of the principal Act).

Clause 19E is also a technical amendment and removes references in section 11 of the principal Act to the definition of Registrar-General in section 9(4) of the principal Act.

Clause 19F amends section 12 of the principal Act to clarify that the amendments set out in the Schedule of the principal Act are amendments arising from Part 1 of the principal Act (and not from new Part 3 inserted by clause 19I). Amendments arising from new Part 3 are set out in new Schedule 3 of the principal Act (inserted by clause 19L).

Clause 19G amends section 13 of the principal Act so that the purpose of Part 2 of the principal Act is to remove uncertainty about the status of children conceived as a result of an assisted reproductive procedure that is not performed in connection with a surrogacy arrangement. The status of children born as a result of an assisted reproductive procedure performed in connection with a surrogacy arrangement is dealt with in new Part 3 of the principal Act (inserted by clause 19I).

Clause 19H inserts new section 13A into Part 2 of the principal Act to make it clear that Part 2 of the principal Act does not apply in respect of surrogate-born children.

Clause 19I inserts new Part 3 into the principal Act, which relates to the parentage of children born as a result of surrogacy arrangements. This Part comprises 6 subparts—

- new subpart 1, comprising new sections 30 to 40, which sets out general provisions relating to transfer of parentage:
- new subpart 2, comprising new sections 41 to 45, which provides for the transfer of parentage by operation of law:
- new subpart 3, comprising new sections 46 to 60, which provides for the transfer of parentage by court order:
- new subpart 4, comprising new sections 61 to 65, which provides for declarations of parentage:
- new subpart 5, comprising new sections 66 and 67, which provides for the recognition of certain overseas parentage determinations:
- new subpart 6, comprising new sections 68 and 69, which sets out other provisions.

New section 28 provides that the purposes of new Part 3 are to—

- determine the parentage of surrogate-born children; and
- provide for the transfer of parentage of surrogate-born children and set out the effect of a transfer of parentage; and
- provide for declarations of parentage and set out the effect of a declaration; and
- provide for the recognition of certain overseas parentage determinations.

New section 29 is an interpretation provision and defines terms used in new Part 3, including court, intended parents, parentage order, parties, provider, surrogate, and surrogate-born child. The definitions of provider, intended parents, surrogate, and surrogate-born child are the same as the definitions for those terms in section 5 of the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004 (as inserted by clause 10D).

New section 30 provides that the surrogate of a surrogate-born child is the sole parent of the child until parentage of the child is transferred, a declaration of parentage is made in respect of the child, or an adoption order is made in respect of the child under which the surrogate ceases to be a parent of the child. This is the case even if the surrogate had a partner at the time the child was conceived, during the gestation of the child, or when the child was born.

New section 31 provides that the surrogate of a surrogate-born child is the sole guardian of the child until parentage of the child is transferred, a declaration of parentage is made in respect of the child, an order is made removing the surrogate as a guardian of the child, 1 or more other persons are appointed guardians of the child, or an adoption order is made in respect of the child under which the surrogate ceases to be a parent of the child. However, if the surrogacy arrangement was approved by the ethics committee or review panel, the intended parents are additional guardians of the child. The intended parents cease to be guardians of the surrogate-born child when parentage of the child is transferred, an application for a parentage order in respect of the child is determined by the court, an order is made removing the intended parents as guardians of the child, an order is made that has the effect of suspending the intended parents as guardians of the child, or an adoption order is made in respect of the child.

New section 32 provides that the court may appoint 1 or more persons as additional guardians of the child. The appointment of a guardian by the court ceases to have effect if parentage of the child is transferred or a declaration of parentage is made in respect of the child. However, this section does not limit specified provisions of the Care of Children Act 2004, the Oranga Tamariki Act 1989, or the Adoption Act 1955 under which the appointment may cease to have effect.

New section 33 applies to intended parents who, under new section 31(2), are additional guardians of a surrogate-born child. New section 33 provides that the court may make an order removing 1 or both of the intended parents as guardians of the surrogate-born child if it is satisfied that the order will serve the best interests of the surrogate-born child. An order may only be made on an application of the surrogate, an intended parent, or a person who has been granted leave by the court to make the application.

New section 34 provides that parentage of a surrogate-born child may only be transferred from the surrogate to the intended parents by—

- operation of law under subpart 2 of new Part 3; or
- a parentage order made under subpart 3 of new Part 3.

Query for submitters

6. Should there be an upper time limit for the initiation or completion of a transfer of parentage by operation of law or by a parentage order? If so, what should the time limit be? Should an older surrogate-born child be able to apply for a parentage order, or have an exclusive right to apply for a parentage order?

New section 35 sets out the effect of a transfer of parentage. The effect is that—

- the child becomes the child of the intended parents; and
- the child ceases to be the child of the surrogate; and
- the intended parents become the parents and guardians of the child; and
- the surrogate ceases to be a parent and guardian of the child.

Other familial relationships are determined in accordance with the above.

New section 36 provides that, for certain purposes, a surrogate-born child is taken to have both the familial relationships that existed before parentage was transferred and the familial relationships that resulted from the transfer of parentage. These purposes are for determining whether persons are within any prohibited degrees of civil union or marriage and for applying the law relating to a sexual offence where a familial relationship is relevant.

Query for submitters

7. After a surrogate-born person's parentage has transferred to the intended parents, in what circumstances should a marriage or civil union be prohibited between the surrogate-born person and the surrogate or a member of the surrogate's family? Is the approach in new section 36 appropriate, or could a less restrictive approach be appropriate? For example, should a surrogate-born person who has no genetic connection to their surrogate and whose parentage has been transferred be able to enter into a civil union or marriage with a person who is a child of the surrogate?

New section 37 provides that the transfer of parentage does not have effect to deprive a surrogate-born child of any vested or contingent property rights acquired by the child before the transfer of parentage.

Query for submitters

8. Should a transfer of parentage have any other legal effects?

New section 38 provides for the interpretation to be given to references to mother, father, or mother and father in the context of surrogate-born children whose parentage has been transferred, or in respect of whom a declaration of parentage has been made or an overseas parentage determination is recognised.

New section 39 provides for the interpretation to be given to references to blood relationship in the context of surrogate-born children whose parentage has been transferred, or in respect of whom a declaration of parentage has been made or an overseas parentage determination is recognised.

New section 40 provides for the interpretation to be given to references to natural child and natural parent in the context of surrogate-born children whose parentage has been transferred, or in respect of whom a declaration of parentage has been made or an overseas parentage determination is recognised.

New section 41 provides for the parentage of a surrogate-born child to be transferred by operation of law. Parentage is transferred by operation of law if—

- the surrogacy arrangement has been approved by the ethics committee or review panel; and
- the surrogate-born child is in the care of the intended parents; and
- the surrogate has made a statutory declaration in accordance with new section 42.

Parentage is transferred from the surrogate to the intended parents immediately upon the intended parents receiving the surrogate's declaration.

Queries for submitters

9. Do you agree that the transfer of parentage by operation of law should take effect when the intended parents receive the surrogate's signed declaration? Or should the transfer of parentage by operation of law take effect on the date that the surrogate signs the declaration, or at some other time?

10. Should a transfer of parentage by operation of law only be available in respect of a surrogate-born child who is born in New Zealand?

New section 42 sets out the matters that must be verified in a surrogate's statutory declaration, including that the surrogacy arrangement has been approved, any conditions on an approval have been satisfied, and the surrogate consents to relinquish the parentage and guardianship of the child. The declaration may not be made earlier than 7 days after the birth of the child and must be in a form approved by the Registrar-General. It must be made before a lawyer who must certify that before the surrogate made the declaration the effect and implications of the declaration was explained to them.

New section 43 provides that, if the surrogacy arrangement did not involve a provider, the surrogate must provide to the intended parents certain information that is required by the Births, Deaths, Marriages, and Relationships Registration Act 2021 for the purposes of registering the child's birth. The surrogate must provide this information at the same time as providing their statutory declaration or immediately afterwards.

New section 44 provides for the situation where 1 of the intended parents dies before parentage of the surrogate-born child is transferred and the child is in the care of the surviving intended parent. In this case, parentage of the surrogate-born child may be transferred to the surviving intended parent and the deceased intended parent.

New section 45 provides for the transfer of parentage by operation of law to be recorded in a court order. On receipt of an application from the surrogate, 1 or both of the intended parents, or the surrogate-born child, the court may make an order on the papers if it is satisfied that the parentage of the surrogate-born child has transferred by operation of law. The order is, for all purposes, treated as a parentage order made under new section 58.

New section 46 sets out when an application for a parentage order may be made to the Family Court. An application may be made if at least 1 of the parties to the surrogacy arrangement is habitually resident in New Zealand when the application is made or has been granted leave by the court to apply. An application may not be made if an application for a parentage order has previously been made in respect of the child and that application has been determined, or is awaiting determination, or if an application for an adoption order has been made in respect of the child and that application has been determined, or is awaiting determination.

New section 47 sets out when the court may grant a party leave to apply for a parentage order. A Judge must be satisfied that the court is the most appropriate forum to determine the parentage of the child and that having the court determine the parentage of the child is in the child's best interests. In considering whether the court is the most appropriate forum to determine the parentage of the child, the Judge must take into account certain matters, including the place of the surrogate's habitual residence, the place of the intended parents' habitual residence, and whether a similar or related proceeding in respect of the child has been commenced in another jurisdiction.

New section 48 provides that an application for a parentage order may be made by 1 of the intended parents, both of the intended parents jointly, or the surrogate. If any party has died, the application may be made by the party's personal representative on behalf of the party.

New section 49 provides that, if the surrogacy arrangement did not involve a provider and the child is alive, the applicant must include in or with their application so much of the prescribed information as is known to them. The prescribed information is information prescribed by regulations that is required by the Births, Deaths, Marriages, and Relationships Registration Act 2021 to be provided by the Registrar of the court to the Registrar-General when a parentage order is made. The information must be, or include, information about the surrogate and any donor (not being an intended parent) who donated genetic material that resulted in the birth of the surrogate-born child.

New section 50 provides that, before an application for a parentage order is determined by the court, the chief executive of Oranga Tamariki—Ministry for Children must arrange for a social worker to prepare a parentage report. However, a parentage report is not required if the surrogate-born child is over the age of 18 years or the child was born before the commencement of this section. The report must include an assessment of any of the matters in new section 57 specified and any other specified matters. The report may also include an assessment of any other matters that the social worker considers relevant to the application. A copy of the report must be given to lawyers for the parties (or to the parties if they are not represented), any lawyer appointed to represent the surrogate-born child, and any lawyer appointed to assist the court. The social worker may be called as a witness.

New section 51 provides that, before determining an application for a parentage order, the court may also obtain, in respect of the surrogate-born child, any cultural, medical, and psychiatric report. The court may do so only if it is satisfied of certain matters, including that the report will provide information essential to the case and that the report is the best source of the information. A copy of any report must be given to lawyers for the parties (or to the parties if they are not represented), any lawyer appointed to represent the surrogate-born child, and any lawyer appointed to assist the court.

New section 52 is about payment of the fees and reasonable expenses incurred in respect of a report obtained under new section 51.

New section 53 provides for the appointment of a lawyer to represent a surrogate-born child in proceedings if the court has concerns for the safety or well-being of the child and considers an appointment necessary.

New section 54 requires a lawyer who is appointed to represent a surrogate-born child, so far as it is reasonably practicable to do so having regard to the age and maturity of the child, to explain the nature of the proceedings to the child.

New section 55 provides for the appointment of a lawyer to assist the court.

New section 56 is about payment of the fees and expenses of a lawyer appointed to represent a child or to assist the court.

New section 57 sets out the matters that the court may take into account when deciding whether to make a parentage order. These matters include the intentions of the parties when entering into the surrogacy arrangement in relation to the future parentage of the child, whether the parties consent to the transfer of parentage, the arrangements in place for preserving the child's genetic and gestational origins and whakapapa and for the child to have access to this information, and the value of the child having continuity in their care, development, and upbringing. Additional matters are set out in new section 57(3) if the surrogacy arrangement was entered into outside New Zealand, the child was conceived outside New Zealand, or the child was born outside New Zealand.

New section 58 provides that the court may make a parentage order transferring the parentage of a surrogate-born child from the surrogate to either or both of the intended parents if the court is satisfied that the order promotes the welfare and best interests of the child.

New section 59 requires that, as soon as practicable after a parentage order is made, a Registrar of the court must notify the Registrar-General that the order has been made and provide the information required by the Births, Deaths, Marriages, and Relationships Registration Act 2021 relating to the identity of the surrogate-born child.

New section 60 provides for the destruction of information provided to the court under new section 49 if no parentage order is made.

New section 61 provides that an application may be made to the Family Court for a declaration of parentage declaring that a parent-child relationship exists between a surrogate-born child and the surrogate's partner. The term surrogate's partner means a person who was the spouse, civil union partner, or de facto partner of the surrogate when the surrogate-born child was conceived, or during the gestation of the child, or when the child was born, or at any or all of these times. An application for a declaration may be made by the surrogate or the surrogate's partner if they are habitually resident in New Zealand.

Query for submitters

11. Are declarations of parentage needed and, if so, in what circumstances might an application for a declaration of parentage be made? Or should the provisions of subpart 4 of new Part 3 be removed from the Bill?

New section 62 provides that an application for a declaration may be made in respect of a surrogate-born child only after the court has declined to make a parentage order transferring the parentage of the child.

New section 63 applies the provisions of the Family Proceedings Act 1980 relating to parentage tests.

New section 64 provides that the court may make a declaration of parentage if it is satisfied that a parent-child relationship exists between the surrogate-born child and the surrogate's partner.

New section 65 provides that if a declaration of parentage is made declaring a named person a parent of a surrogate-born child, then, for all purposes,—

- the named person is a parent and guardian of the child and is deemed to have been a parent and guardian of the child from the child's birth; and
- the child is a child of the named person and is deemed to have been a child of that person from birth.

New section 66 provides for the recognition of certain overseas parentage determinations. If the conditions listed in new section 66(1) are satisfied, an overseas parentage determination is recognised in New Zealand and has the same effect as if it were a transfer of parentage by operation of law or by a parentage order. The conditions include that the child was born outside New Zealand as a result of a surrogacy arrangement, the parties to the surrogacy arrangement were not habitually resident in New Zealand when they entered into the surrogacy arrangement or when the child was born, and that the overseas parentage determination is a final determination and is legally valid in the place in which it was made. An overseas parentage determination may be a parentage order or other judicial determination made outside New Zealand, a parentage declaration declared outside New Zealand, an administrative determination or process outside New Zealand, or the operation of law outside New Zealand.

Query for submitters

12. Are there other circumstances in which an overseas parentage determination should be recognised in New Zealand?

New section 67 provides that if the Secretary of Internal Affairs has relied on an overseas parentage determination for the purposes of determining an application for New Zealand citizenship in respect of a surrogate-born child, or an application for a New Zealand travel document in respect of a surrogate-born child, the Secretary must give to the Registrar-General certain information that the Secretary holds in relation to the identity of the child. This information includes any information held by the Secretary about the surrogate and any donor (not being a parent) whose donation resulted in the surrogate's pregnancy.

Query for submitters

13. Should identity information about a surrogate-born child be collected at this point?

New section 68 provides that rules may be made under section 16A of the Family Court Act 1980 relating to the practice and procedure of the court in proceedings under new Part 3.

New section 69 consequentially amends the legislation specified in new Schedule 3 as set out in that schedule.

Clause 19J inserts new Schedule 1 into the principal Act, which appears in Schedule 1 of this Bill. New Schedule 1 sets out transitional, savings, and related matters.

Clause 19K replaces the heading of the Schedule of the principal Act so that it becomes Schedule 2 and indicates that this schedule relates to the consequential amendments arising from Part 2 of the principal Act as enacted.

Clause 19L inserts new Schedule 3 into the principal Act, which appears in Schedule 2 of this Bill. New Schedule 3 sets out amendments to other enactments consequential on new Part 3.

Part 3A

Amendments to Citizenship Act 1977

Clause 19M provides that Part 3A amends the Citizenship Act 1977 (the principal Act).

Clause 19N amends section 2 of the principal Act, which is the interpretation provision. Definitions of child, surrogacy arrangement, surrogate-born child, and surrogate are inserted. The definitions of the latter 3 terms are the same as the definitions for those terms inserted in section 5 of the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004 (by clause 10D).

Clause 19O amends section 3(1) of the principal Act so that, for the purposes of the principal Act, the general presumption of fatherhood does not apply in respect of surrogate-born children.

Clause 19P inserts new section 3A into the principal Act, which, for the purposes of the principal Act, determines the parentage of surrogate-born children. A person who is a New Zealand citizen, or who is entitled to be in New Zealand indefinitely or reside indefinitely in the Cook Islands, Niue, or Tokelau, is treated as a parent of a surrogate-born child if the parentage of the child has been transferred to them or the person is declared to be a parent of the child by a declaration of parentage. The terms mother and father used in the principal Act are to be read accordingly.

New section 3A also sets out that, for the purposes of the principal Act, a surrogate-born child is to be treated as having been born at the place, and on the date, as follows:

- if parentage of the child was transferred by operation of law under subpart 2 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969, the child is to be treated as having been born in New Zealand on the date parentage was transferred:
- if parentage of the child was transferred by operation of law under subpart 3 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969, the child is to be treated as having been born in New Zealand on the date the parentage order was made:
- if parentage of the child was transferred by an overseas parentage determination that is recognised in New Zealand under subpart 5 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969, the child is to be treated as having been born at the place and on the date the determination was made:
- if a declaration of parentage has been made in respect of the child under subpart 4 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969, the child is to be treated as having been born in New Zealand on the date the declaration was made.

Clause 19Q inserts new section 6(7) and (8) into the principal Act to provide that a person who is a New Zealand citizen by birth does not lose their New Zealand citizenship if the person's parentage is transferred under new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969.

Clause 19R inserts new section 7(5) and (6) into the principal Act to provide that a person who is a New Zealand citizen by descent does not lose their New Zealand citizenship if the person's parentage is transferred under new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969.

Part 5

Amendments to Births, Deaths, Marriages, and Relationships Registration Act 2021

Clause 25A provides that Part 5 amends the Births, Deaths, Marriages, and Relationships Registration Act 2021 (the principal Act).

Clause 25B amends the purpose of the principal Act set out in section 3. The purpose of the principal Act is extended to include requiring the notification, registration, and verification of information relating to transfers of parentage of surrogate-born children so as to provide an official record of the parentage of these children.

Clause 25C amends section 4 of the principal Act, which is the interpretation section, to—

- define established procedure, surrogacy arrangement, surrogate, and surrogate-born child the same as in section 5 of the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004; and
- define AHR procedure the same as in section 15 of the Status of Children Act 1969 (which includes established procedures); and
- define restricted surrogacy information.

The definition of birth information in section 4 of the principal Act is amended to exclude restricted surrogacy information. The effect of this is that the identity information of a child born as a result of a surrogacy arrangement does not form part of the child's birth information and so cannot be accessed as birth information. This identity information of a surrogate-born child is instead restricted surrogacy information that sits alongside the child's birth information in the registry maintained by the Registrar-General.

Section 4 of the principal Act is also amended to include the transfer of parentage under subpart 2 or 3 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969 and the receipt by the Registrar-General of information from the Secretary of Internal Affairs under new section 67 of the Children Act 1969 as registrable events, and to include restricted surrogacy information in the definition of restricted information. The effect of the latter is that the rules in the principal Act relating to access to restricted information will apply to restricted surrogacy information.

Clause 25D amends section 12 of the principal Act, which requires the parents of a child to notify the Registrar-General of the child's birth. The effect of the amendment is to provide that the surrogate of a surrogate-born child who is the sole parent of the child may notify the Registrar-General of the child's birth.

Clause 25E inserts new section 12A into the principal Act to require the person or persons to whom the parentage of a surrogate-born child is transferred under subpart 2 or 3 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969 to notify the Registrar-General of the birth of the child. They must do this as soon as practicable after becoming the parents of the child and even if the birth of the child has already been notified under section 12 of the principal Act by the surrogate.

Clause 25F inserts new section 16A into the principal Act to require that, on receipt of the parents notification of the birth of a surrogate-born child, the Registrar-General must register the birth of the child. If the birth has already been registered as a result of the Registrar-General receiving a notification of birth from the surrogate, that earlier registration is superseded and must be deleted.

Clause 25G amends section 17 of the principal Act to provide that the Registrar-General may register the birth of a child that occurs outside New Zealand if—

- the parentage of the child has been transferred by operation of law under subpart 2 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969 and the parents of the child have provided to the Registrar-General the information required by new section 30B(2) or 30C(2) of the principal Act (inserted by clause 25J); or

- a parentage order has been made in respect of the child under subpart 3 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969 and a copy of the order has been provided to the Registrar-General under new section 30D(2) or 30E(2) of the principal Act (inserted by clause 25J).

Clause 25H amends section 20 of the principal Act, which requires the Registrar-General to register information about the identity of a parent or parents who notify the birth of a child. Section 20(2) of the principal Act sets out the circumstances in which the identity of a parent who did not notify the birth of a child must also be registered. The amendment is to section 20(2) to extend these circumstances to include identity information relating to a person in respect of whom a declaration of parentage has been made under subpart 4 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969 declaring that a parent-child relationship exists between the person and the child.

Clause 25I amends section 30 of the principal Act to afford a right of appeal to the Family Court in respect of any decision made by the Registrar-General under—

- section 17 of the principal Act, relating to the registration of the birth of a child outside New Zealand in respect of whom parentage has been transferred under subpart 2 or 3 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969; or
- section 20 of the principal Act, relating to the registration of identity information relating to a person in respect of whom a declaration of parentage has been made under subpart 4 of new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969; or
- new section 106A of the principal Act (inserted by clause 25O), relating to access to restricted surrogacy information.

Clause 25J inserts new subpart 2A into Part 2 of the principal Act, which relates to surrogate-born children. This new subpart comprises new sections 30A to 30I.

New section 30A is the interpretation section for new subpart 2A and defines non-provider-assisted surrogacy arrangement, provider, and provider-assisted surrogacy arrangement.

New section 30B applies if—

- the parentage of a child born as a result of a surrogacy arrangement has been transferred by operation of law under new subpart 2 of Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969; and
- the surrogacy arrangement did not involve the performance of an AHR procedure or an established procedure by a provider.

If this section applies, the parents of the child must, at the same time as notifying the Registrar-General of the birth of the child, provide certain information relating to the transfer of parentage, the surrogate, and each donor who donated genetic material that resulted in the surrogate's pregnancy (but who is not a parent of the child).

New section 30C applies if—

- the parentage of a child born the result of a surrogacy arrangement has been transferred by operation of law under new subpart 2 of Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969; and
- the surrogacy arrangement did involve the performance of an AHR procedure or an established procedure by a provider.

If this section applies, the parents of the child must, at the same time as notifying the Registrar-General of the birth of the child, provide a copy of the surrogate's statutory declaration made in accordance with new section 42 of the Status of Children Act 1969 and a statement of the date on which parentage of the child was transferred. Information relating to the surrogate and any donor is not required to be provided by the parents in this case because this information will be provided by the provider under new Part 3A of the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004.

New section 30D applies if—

- the parentage of a child born as a result of a surrogacy arrangement has been transferred by a parentage order under new subpart 3 of Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969; and
- the surrogacy arrangement did not involve the performance of an AHR procedure or an established procedure by a provider.

If this section applies, the Registrar of the court in which the parentage order was made must provide to the Registrar-General a copy of the parentage order and confirmation of the date on which it was made, details about the child, and the information provided to the court under new section 49 of the Status of Children Act 1969 (if the child is not deceased).

New section 30E applies if—

- the parentage of a child born as a result of a surrogacy arrangement has been transferred by a parentage order under new subpart 3 of Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969; and
- the surrogacy arrangement did involve the performance of an AHR procedure or an established procedure by a provider.

If this section applies, the Registrar of the court in which the parentage order was made must provide to the Registrar-General a copy of the parentage order and confirmation of the date on which it was made, and the names of the child, surrogate, and persons to whom parentage of the child has been transferred. Further information about the child and surrogate, and information about any donor, is not required to be provided by the Registrar of the court in this case because this information will be provided by the provider under new Part 3A of the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004.

New section 30F requires the Registrar-General to register alongside the birth record of a surrogate-born child the identity information received in respect of the child under any of new sections 30B, 30C, 30D, and 30E of the principal Act and new section 66G of the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004.

New section 30G requires the Registrar-General to record in the register all information that the Registrar-General received from the Secretary of Internal Affairs under new section 67 of the Status of Children Act 1969.

New section 30H requires the Registrar-General to accept any information received from a surrogate or a donor that updates their identity information and to register or record that information.

New section 30I provides that the Registrar-General is not responsible for the accuracy of any information registered under new section 30F or 30H, or recorded under new section 30G or 30H.

Clause 25K amends section 88(1) of the principal Act to provide that only a person who confirms their identity as required by section 88(2) may request access to information under new section 106A of the principal Act (inserted by clause 25O).

Clause 25L amends section 91 of the principal Act, which provides that persons whose identity is confirmed may request access to certain information in relation to named persons, including information relating to the person's birth. The effect of the amendment is that no request may be made under this section in respect of restricted surrogacy information.

Clause 25M inserts new section 92A into the principal Act, which provides a mechanism for the informing persons that there is restricted surrogacy information registered or recorded in the register alongside their birth record. If a person born the result of a surrogacy arrangement requests a copy of information from their birth record and there is restricted surrogacy information registered or recorded alongside their birth information, the Registrar-General must, when providing the person with a copy of their birth information, notify the person of the existence of the restricted surrogacy information and how they may access the information.

Clause 25N amends section 97 of the principal Act, which provides that certain departments and organisations may request the Registrar-General to search for, or provide, information in the registry for a purpose that is in the public interest or the interest of a named person even if the information is subject to a non-disclosure direction. The amendment clarifies that a request may be made under this section in respect of restricted surrogacy information.

Clause 25O makes a technical amendment to section 98(1) of the principal Act to correct a cross-reference error. An amendment is also made to section 98(3) of the principal Act so that the Registrar-General need not keep in the access register any record of a request for access to restricted surrogacy information.

Query for submitters

14. Should there be a mechanism to alert surrogate-born people to the existence of their restricted information? If so, is the notification mechanism proposed in new section 92A appropriate? Or is there an alternative mechanism that would better balance the right to identity information and the right to privacy of personal information?

Clause 25P inserts new section 106A into the principal Act to provide that a surrogate-born child, surrogate, and donor may have access to restricted surrogacy information relating to themselves that is registered alongside the birth record of the surrogate-born child. Other specified persons may be afforded access at the discretion of the Registrar-General, for example a personal representative of a surrogate-born child, or a medical practitioner if the information is relevant for the purpose of providing medical treatment or advice to any person.

Clause 25Q amends section 109 of the principal Act so that the Registrar-General may provide access to restricted surrogacy information on the order of the Family Court, District Court, or High Court if there is any question about the validity of the parentage of a surrogate-born child.

Clause 25R amends section 126 of the principal Act to provide that the Registrar-General may not delegate to any Registrar the Registrar-General's powers under new section 106A of the principal Act (inserted by clause 25P) that relate to access to restricted surrogacy information.

Clause 25S is a technical amendment to repeal the definition of AHR procedure in section 132(3) of the principal Act. This definition is not necessary because this term is defined in section 4 of the principal Act (see clause 25C).

Clause 25T consequentially amends the legislation specified in Schedule 3 of this Bill as set out in that schedule.

Part 5A

Amendments to Income Tax Act 2007

Clause 25U provides that Part 5A amends the Income Tax Act 2007 (the principal Act). The purpose of the amendments to the principal Act is to clarify how payments made to a surrogate for the surrogate's reasonable surrogacy costs (within the meaning of new section 23D of the Human Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2004 (inserted by clause 10I) interact with income tax liabilities and the working for families tax credits.

Clause 25V inserts new section CW 63A into the principal Act to provide that only payments made to a surrogate for lost or diminished income (including any employer's superannuation contribution) are taxable.

Clause 25W amends section MB 13 of the principal Act to provide that only payments made to a surrogate for lost or diminished income (including any employer's superannuation contribution) are considered family scheme income.

Part 8

Amendments to other Acts

Subpart 1—Amendments to Adoption Act 1955

Clause 33 provides that subpart 1 of Part 8 amends the Adoption Act 1955 (the principal Act).

Clause 34 inserts new section 4A into the principal Act, which sets out restrictions for the making of adoption orders in respect of children born as a result of a surrogacy arrangement whose parentage has not been transferred from the surrogate to another person under the Status of Children Act 1969.

An adoption order cannot be made in respect of a child on the application of a person who is a party to the surrogacy arrangement unless the court is satisfied that—

- the parentage of the child is not able to be transferred to the person under subpart 2 or 3 of Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969; or
- an application by the person under subpart 3 of Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969 for a parentage order has been declined.

An adoption order cannot be made in respect of a child on the application of any other person unless the court is satisfied that—

- no party to the surrogacy arrangement is intending to seek a transfer of parentage of the child under subpart 2 or 3 of Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969; or
- an application by a party to the surrogacy arrangement under subpart 3 of Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969 for a parentage order has been declined.

Query for submitters

15. Do you agree with new section 4A proposed to be inserted in the Adoption Act 1955? Or do you have any other views on when a surrogate-born child should be able to be adopted?

Schedules

Schedule 1 inserts new Schedule 1 into the Status of Children Act 1969 that sets out transitional, savings, and related provisions. It provides that—

- the parentage of a surrogate-born child born before the date on which Part 3 comes into force may be determined by a parentage order or an adoption order:
- the parentage of a surrogate-born child born on or after the date on which Part 3 comes into force may be determined by a transfer of parentage by operation of law, a parentage order, a declaration of parentage, or, in limited circumstances, an adoption order:
- a declaration of parentage may be made in respect of a surrogate-born child who is born before, on, or after the date on which Part 3 comes into force:
- an overseas parentage determination made in respect of a surrogate-born child born before, on, or after the date on which Part 3 comes into force may be recognised in New Zealand.

Schedule 2 inserts new Schedule 3 into the Status of Children Act 1969 that sets out consequential amendments to enactments arising from new Part 3 of the Status of Children Act 1969.

Schedule 3 sets out consequential amendments to enactments arising from the amendments to the Births, Deaths, Marriages, and Relationships Registration Act 2021 in Part 5.
